From the Pastor.....

Church Family,

Now this is good weather! (Minus the rain.) This Sunday we are beginning a study of Christmas Absolutes. Absolutes are things that are certain – there is no question about them, they are eternal truths, they are always dependable. Through Absolutes God gives us the wonderful gift of confidence. How many things/people do you have in your life that you depend on 100% of the time? Experience tells us that people/things/etc. will let us down. That creates in each of us a measure of uncertainty and lack of confidence. God gives us great confidence through His Absolutes. I am excited to share these with you as we head into the Christmas holiday!

Update on the reading list – you can now find our daily reading list on the website in a new section on the bottom right of our page. Thank you Diana Henrickson for making that happen!

Keep safe and warm today!

Pastor

Jim

Worship Ministry.....

As you're starting to think about 2008's new year's resolutions and trying to figure out just how many of them you are willing to leave in the "Has not been done" column, Why not go ahead and begin thinking toward 2009. 2009 would be a great year to join the music ministry at PGBC. We are looking for instrumentalists and vocalists and we would love to have you join us. To make this even easier for you, we are going to begin a "First Sunday" choir. This choir will only sing one Sunday a month and will remove some of the pressure of an every week commitment. It will also allow you to be a part of other ministries in the church. We're going to add to our band in much the same way. Please be praying about your contribution to worship ministry. We need you, are you willing? For more information, please see Pastor Randy.

Youth Ministry.....

Check Point tonight at 6:15 in the chapel. If you have an opportunity, please bring gift card for the toy drive that Shea Peterson is helping with at Crockett Middle School. Today is the last day to participate in toy drive.

Women's Ministry.....

Christmas cookie exchange will be Saturday, December 13 at 9:00 am in the Prayer Room. Please bring 2 dozen of your favorite cookies. Our speaker for that morning will be Bonnie Walker.
